Service Overview

Exploring the world of work from new points of view is crucial to making smart decisions about how your workplace can best contribute to the success of your organization.

Herman Miller's Topography workshop can give you the context you need to make those decisions. It provides a fresh look at the workplace landscape by merging a thorough understanding of business trends with unique insight into workplace design.

Developed through more than a decade of research, customer input, and hands-on experience, our Topography workshop is designed to improve your workplace literacy, giving you a keen awareness of what's happening, what's on the horizon, and what you should do about it.

What We Do

Herman Miller's Topography workshop takes a diagnostic approach toward helping you create a great place to work. We'll help you explore the major influences on your workplace and identify their impact on the decisions you need to make regarding workplace design and furnishings.

Since your organization is unlike any other, your Topography workshop will be, too. Beforehand, we'll help you determine which issues resonate most urgently with your organization and then tailor your workshop accordingly.

You can choose to explore an overview of the world of work or take an in-depth look from a specific viewpoint. Either way, you'll come away with well-defined expectations for your workplace, as well as ideas for how you can best meet them.

How You Benefit

Understand the broad context

Workplace decisions are often based on hunches, not facts. A Topography workshop provides the perspective needed to make wise decisions within the context of emerging work trends.

Understand your workforce

Individual experiences, expectations, and differences have a bearing on how your workplace takes shape. We'll help you better understand your workforce and apply that understanding to your workplace.

Define criteria for success

How can you know if your workplace has arrived until you've defined its destination? We'll help you establish criteria for workplace success and develop a roadmap for reaching it.

Connect to solutions

Once you've articulated expectations for your workplace, we'll show how specific Herman Miller solutions can help fulfill those expectations.
